

Stephen Akinsanya

Stephen has been in private practice as a criminal barrister for 29 years. He is an experienced advocate in criminal law and has appeared in many complex and serious criminal cases including murder and fraud. He has been led in a number of high-profile criminal cases from the Central Criminal Court to the Supreme Court.

Stephen was previously a member of the Turks and Caicos Islands Bar and he appeared as lead counsel in a high-profile murder trial, coroner's inquest and regularly defended in cases there.

He recently successfully completed his LLM in International Dispute Resolution with Merit at Queen Mary's London and advises on some aspects of arbitration and commercial disputes as well as providing a second opinion in appellate work.

Stephen has built a reputation as an approachable, conscientious professional with courteous and sensitive treatment of his solicitors and clients, both professional and lay. He has a noticeable skill of quickly putting his client at ease from the first meeting and throughout the trial process. He provides clear practical advice and presents his client's case with clarity and simplicity. He is regarded as a passionate and persuasive advocate.

Stephen was a visiting advocacy adviser and trainer on the annual legal workshop panel at his former University for over 5 years. He is also an accredited advocacy trainer for the Inner Temple since 2015.
